He said that the movement was a tremendous force and it has gone beyond the range of traditional barriers based on religion, caste and creed and the movement raised hope for an unified world in the generations to come.

Mr. Gandhi said that the Scout and Guide movement should be encouraged as it instilled a sense of discipline and helped in building the character of youth, the nation builders. He said that the Girl Guide movement helped women to acquire qualities of leadership which is one of the problems faced by the country.

Mountaineering

He wanted the movement to utilise the grant sanctioned for spreading its activities into the fields like mountaineering, sea expedition and other fields which are adventurous. Such steps would give a boost and bring out best in the youngsters, he declared.

Arriving on time at the Palace Grounds, the Prime Minister went round in an open jeep to review the smartly clad contingents from all parts of the country and abroad.

Welcome

The Union Home Minister and the President of Bharat Scouts and Guides, Mr. S. B. Chavan in his welcome address said that twenty thousand Scouts and Guides from all over the country were present and delegates from Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Nepal, Indonesia, Denmark, West Germany, Austria, United Kingdom and Singapore were amidst them.

Compulsory

Karnataka Chief Minister Ramakrishna Hegde, who released a Souvenir, suggested that serving for two years in either the Army, N.C.C. or the Scout and Guide movement should be made compulsory and included in the new education policy contemplated by the Prime Minister. It would introduce a sense of discipline and service amongst children he said. He complimented the National and State Chief Commissioners for successful organisation of the Jamboree.

Lazlo Nagy, Secretary General of the World Scout Bureau looks towards the future in his Book "250 Million Scouts"

"The central need of our times is to find the road we have lost or abandoned, and to recover the values we have rejected in favour of every man for himself in pursuit of egoistic goals."

"Hardly surprising, therefore, that in such a selfish world, young people have lost their sense of direction and no longer have any lasting values to which they can attach themselves. For this their elders, those who preach one thing and do another, bear the major responsibility".

"Unlike other young people who want to see paradise here and now, Scouts take a sober, positive interest in the future, knowing it belongs to them and not their elders ... Scouts are well aware that they represent only a fraction of the youth population and have no illusion about their capacity to provide a panacea for the ills of the world. They also know that with their basic principles-duty to God, loyalty to their country, world brotherhood, self-sacrifice, service to others, all of which are voluntarily accepted-and their love of nature and indifference to demagogy, their values conflict with those held by a majority in our times."

"It is conceivable that the future does not belong to those with the most military, economic or political power, but to nations whose populations have high moral standards, and which are able to mobilize their people. Scouting supports order and discipline in a free society and is also in favour of all technical progress which encourages human liberty. It is a service Movement aimed at happiness and not wealth, ready to commit itself to the right causes and worthy of confidence of national leaders in those countries where Scouting is established, a Movement without ambitions or ulterior motives."

"It was very well done indeed" was his remark on the preparations made and said that 'it was an achievement which Karnataka should be proud of'.

He said that the expected number of Scouts and Guides was fifteen thousand only. But the total number was more than twenty thousand. Most likely because the situation of Karnataka with its happy surroundings and climate of Bangalore. This proved that the Scout and Guide Movement had come to stay and therefore the Movement had to reach every youth around the world. The youth should involve in social work and participate in National activity selflessly and provide National Integration, Peace and harmony. It should rededicate to the cause of peace. Illiteracy should be wiped out and spare hours be utilised to educate the people and this would bring a million as better literate citizens. With the help of training and teaching kits supplied by Human Resources Development Organisation, Social Welfare Ministry and Universities programmes could be very successful. Hence the Minister emphasised that children must learn to communicate with others from all over the world and nip in the bud fissiporous tendencies so as to bring about National Integration and rededicate to the cause of world peace.

A Lamp was lit to mark the inauguration as a symbol of brightness.

Himalaya Wood Badge holders Reunion:

Sri G. Ranga Rao, Director, NHQ gave a warm welcome to the participants and guests. There was a programme of sing songs for some time followed by our explanation on Youth Forum in which many youngsters were participating and requested the Gilwellians to attend to know about the working of the youth. The Gilwellians were busy exchanging ideas, opinions and giving out their achievements. In short, they were happy to be reunited and meet each other at such a wonderful function.

Do you know that rotten potatoes could be utilised to produce three volts of current? Surprised! Well, this was arranged under the "Do-it-yourself" activity and many more interesting activities were held. The aim being to activate the habit of learning and sharing ideas. One hundred bases were arranged with each base with a learned instructor and ten children. About seventy-five tents pitched to demonstrate the various skills were made under electric gadgets, rural crafts, decorative crafts, clay modelling.

These were activities to be tested upon and this was a way to provide learning facilities and creativities at the same time. The project was kept open for both Scouts and Guides for their scoring as a part of Jamboree Award. It was attended by the participants to show their achievement of their talent and strength. This was held daily between 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. the activity period for four days, from 5th to 8th January 1986.

The Obstacle race began with the balance walking on a casuarina pole followed by a high jump, climbing the slanting ladder, trench crawling, monkey bridge, chimpanzee crawling, tarzan swing, passing through wheels, balance beam, bicycle race and hurdle jumping.

75th Year of Guiding

The depiction of the growth of the Movement in a Pageant form was arranged together with explanations was a highlight of the celebrations. In her speech Miss Mary Hill, Chair-person, World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts remarked that 'it is an emphasis of national integration of one hundred and eight countries. Even though one hundred and fifty countries are representatives, yet all are not members of the World movement. But they have a three-fold duty to do; duty to God, to one's country and to the people.

The National Commissioner, Sardar Lakshman Singh, said that tremendous growth in Movement shows strength and feeling of awareness that was spreading and this feeling of sisterly and brotherliness should strengthen the growth of Movement.

Smt. Margaret Alva, Hon'ble Union Minister of State for Youth Affairs, who was the Chief Guest, speaking on the occasion, was very happy to spend the afternoon with 'young people'. She emphasised that this youth had to muster strength and reach the corners of the World where growth and development were essential. Appreciating the programme, she remarked, 'how alive you are' and it made it easy for any one to look at the growth of the Movement rather than read about it. A better way to be involved for everyone was in the field of national activity, rededicated to the task of peace, work should be done in the spare hours by young Scouts and Guides in rural areas with massive hygiene programmes.This was a challenge for all and therefore needed active participation to gain success. With good spirit one should dominate and see that challenges are met as one nation and one people. This she said was her sincere advice for everyone in the Movement to follow.

Her speech was followed by a Cultural Programme and the Jamboree Song.

Exhibition :

An exhibition was organised with display of hand made crafts and gadgets. Neatly arranged Statewise, was a very good show.

The Worshipful Mayor Sri B. K. M. Gowda, who was the Chief Guest, remarked in his inauguration speech that 'this is a new exhibition that should be praised by all. It is a way to spend knowledge and learning by giving importance to activity, especially national activities where your services are required'. The National Integration leads to equality of performance and spreading of the knowledge will be useful to the whole nation.

Mr. A. K. M. Nayak, Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore District said that 'he had no words to describe this beautiful exhibition where each one excelled the other. The Scout and Guide Organisation was the only one to encourage the youngsters in self-creative activities and using talent to build up good citizens and if it is made available to all, it will be a better place to live in.

Youth Forum Sessions

Interesting discussions were held on 6th and 7th January 1986 by the Scouts and Guides from various States.

The preliminary discussions were held and reports collected from the participants. On the last day the Chairman gave a consolidated report on the different discussions held with thirty–five States and five foreign contingents taking active part.

Speaking at the conclusion of the Forum, the Chief Guest, Sri Chiranjeev Singh, Secretary to Government, Information, Tourism and Youth Services Department, Government of Karnataka, said that he was reminded of the memories of his childhood and Scouting standards which built up society was started by a sensitive man Baden Powell. With the pillar of self-realisation through character building and social service, community development is achieved. Good virtues help to distinguish and build a determined life. He said that the success of the Movement can be judged by the quality of the participants and not the number. Years spent in Scouting is only fruitful on such achievement.

Sri K. U. Shetty, Director of Youth Services and Sports, Government of Karnataka, who presided felt that whatever is learnt through the Movement should be applied to daily life. The basic ideals should not be abandoned but used at essential times to prove the success of the Scout Movement avoiding any sort of criticism.

Prime Minister's Visit

At the scheduled time, the Hon'ble Prime Minister, Sri Rajiv Gandhi together with other dignitaries drove into the Jamboree Nagar. Having been introduced to the members of the World Bureau, and Commissioners, he was lead to the arena for the inspection of Scouts and Guides by the National Commissioner, Sardar Lakshman Singh.

All were equal and Scouts and Guides cross all barriers through discipline. "A HAPPY MOMENT"
L. to R. Sri Ramakrishna Hegde, Chief Minister, Sri S. B. Chavan, the Union Home Minister and Sri Rajiv Gandhi, Prime Minister.

Camps like this help in this, though it takes place once in four years. Hence to boost its activities, enlarge its operation and spread itself into areas, mountains and the seas, to which Indians seldom go out. At this juncture that a sum of Rs. One Crore grant to the organisation was announced by the Prime Minister which had to be used to play major role in integrating and developing the country on the lines suggested by him.

Sri S. B. Chavan, Hon'ble Union Home Minister who presided, complimented the Karnataka Government for successfully conducting the event.

Dr. Jeevaraj Alva, Hon'ble Minister of State for Information, Youth Services and Tourism, Government of Karnataka, proposed a vote of thanks and he congratulated the grandson of late Sri Jawaharlal Nehru for trying to be in his best and saluted him for rendering service for World Peace. He also said that Karnataka was prepared to hold the next World Jamboree.

Pageant

Sri P.G.R. Sindhia, Hon'ble Minister of State for Transport and Housing, Government of Karnataka was the Chief Guest of this fantastic Pagent Show.

The Theme of the show was 'Freedom Struggle'. Each State took immense Pains to depict their heroes in the best possible manner, both artistically and by improvised methods. Each State depicted freedom struggle in their own way. Great heroines like Rani Jhansi or Hero like Shivaji were depicted.

Three Veteran freedom fighters who were present among the participants lead the Pageant amidst cheers around the arena, followed by the respective freedom fighters, heroes like Tipu Sultan, Mahatma Gandhi, Vinoba Bhave, Jawaharlal Nehru, Lal Bahadur Sastri, Allur Seetharama Raju and heroines like Kittur Chennamma, Sarojini Naidu, etc. Mention must be made of the enthusiasm and keen interest shown by the participants who tried to make the show lively.

The Chief Guest, Sri P. G. R. Sindhia, in his speech expressed that it was indeed a thrilling experience to see the saga of struggle being depicted. It is only from this Pageant that we learn the sacrifice and struggle with which we have built our country. To-day in all walks-of-life we see indiscipline and corruption, he said and analysed it as the result of non-realisation of the values of earlier struggles. If discipline is inculcated in all walks of life through the Scouting Movement, it would help to solve a number of problems through dedication, patriotism and sense of brotherhood.

Conference of Scouters and Guiders

The Chief Commissioner of Guides, Smt. Tehmina Barma, was the President of the Conference. Sri V. P. Deenadayalu Naidu, our State Chief Commissioner, introduced the speakers-Sri V. P. and who have rendered 50 Years of service and who were still working for the growth of the Movement was appreciated and honoured by Presentation of Shawls to them by the Chief Guest Sri A. N. Banerjee.

The Governor, recollecting his younger days of Scouting. revealed that he had given up active Scouting because in his days, there was the conflict between the King Emperor and Religious Heads. But he was happy that such feelings were not present there now-a-days and there was more integration and fraternity development in each of the Scouts and Guides to-day. He emphasised the need for using the training of this Movement for community Development and bring out discipline in others while disciplining one self. Importance should be given in avoiding caste, creed, religious feelings and build a strong integrated nation. A Scout should always keep to his promise and do his duty whether in uniform or not. The spirit of Scouting should be prevalent at all times.

This was followed by a formal speech on the occasion wherein Dr. Jeevaraj Alva, confirmed to Governor that 'once a Scout is always a Scout and an old Scout is normally called a former Scout'.
